FOOTNOTES

Issue 5: December 2007

☀ Integrating risk management with global stewardship for collectively reducing our eco-footprint

In spite of the advertisers' message to the contrary, this season is not about spending money, but about spending time with those we care about that really matters. If you're interested in a more 'sustainable' way to celebrate, check out the Center for the New American Dream's website: www.newdream.org and download a free booklet with 'practical tips for having a holiday with more joy and less stuff.'

Deep peace to one and all,
Jill

Three Ways to Get 2008 Off to a Great Start

- 1) Conduct a greenhouse gas (GHG) inventory or carbon footprint (the same thing) for yourself or your business. www.carboncounter.com
- 2) Host one of Northwest Earth Institute's seven discussion courses at your office, school, home or place of faith.
- 3) No matter where you are in the USA, get involved in FOCUS THE NATION on January 31, 2008.

I highly recommend both of these videos:

The Story of Stuff: a 20-minute, fast-paced, fact-filled look at the underside of our production and consumption patterns by an international sustainability expert.

RAY ANDERSON on SUSTAINABILITY

A true 'captain of industry' articulately shares his vision of where we're heading if we continue BUSINESS AS USUAL in this 9 minute video.

Mark your calendar now for the largest sustainable lifestyle show in the Pacific Northwest, with evening entertainment, at the Portland Expo Center on March 28-30:
